THE PRETTIEST WOMAN, - Porter Ashe has made up his mind that the most beautiful woman he eyer saw lives in Richmond, Va.

This is algorithms to the same of the same This is significant, because he was a rivel of Freddie Gebhard in the wooing of Mrs. Langtry at Long Branch last summer, and was the cause of the sentimental quarrel which ended in Freddy's angry departure alone for England. He was promptly followed by the Lily, who brought him back amiably, and they are together again during the actress's present tour. That Ashe should unequivocally award the palm of unequalled loveliness to anybody else than Mrs. Lang-try, after last summer's devotion to her, indicates either resentment or outspoken honesty.

"Is it really true, Mr. Ashe,"he was asked,
"that you found such a wondrous beauty in Virginia?"
"It is true enough," he replied.

"Is she Amelie Rives? I have heard it was she to whom you have awarded the nalm." "No. I have seen the authoress, and she is certainly handsome. So are a great many Virginia girls. I don't believe there is a city in the Union that has such a high average of beauty in its women as Richmond. My sister is visiting there, and she wrote to me that if I would come she would have the bendances when in the show me the handsomest woman in the United States. I went-not for that reason, mind you-but I did see the young lady to whom she referred." 'And her name waswouldn't care to be exploited as a professional beauty."

Mr. Ashe's use of the term "professional beauty" recalled Mrs. Langtry to my mind, and I said : "Well, is she more beautiful than Mrs.

Langtry?"
"Yes; there is no doubt at all about that."

"Well, we've fixed it." "You have?"

"Yes. It's all settled." "May I ask how you settled it?"
"Well, last night he came up to my room

The door was locked and when he knocked I said: 'Who's that?' 'It's me.' 'You can't come in.' He kept knocking. I told him he couldn't come in and he knocked harder, and I told him louder he couldn't come in, and he kicked the door down and came in and we set down and fixed it all up."

PRINCESS GORTCHAKOFF'S DIAMONDS .- A verdict has just been given in a sensational case that has for some time past occupied the tribunal of Frankfort-on the-Maine. Two years ago a quantity of diamonds, valued at £10,000, were stolen from the Princess Gortchakoff in Paris. The Princess suspected her personal attendant, a married woman named Anniser, and gave her into custody. A son of Mme. Anniser, however, a young lawyer, set to work to prove his mother's innocence, and the result of his inquiries was to cause the arrest of an en-gineer named Ruckert, living in Karlsruhe. Ruckert, in his turn, accused the English professor of the Princess, a Mr. Alfree. He likewise accused Princess Gortchakoff of having illegally appropriated diamonds to the value of two millions on the death of her mother, the Princess Stourdza. In the end Ruckert was tried and sentenced to two years' imprisonment .- European edition of the New York Herald.
